Accept, Run Through The Night

After all we've done - our past is gone Future is no more - what it used to be When we have been more sensible

And our world was safe I'm living in this empty room A room without a door

I run through the night I can't handle my fears I run through the night Cannot hide my tears I run through the night

I'm longing for a smile - dying for a little hope Can't you see my pain I'm with you but - still alone

At times when we're more sensible I need you more and more I am living in this empty room a room without a door

I run through the night
I can't handle my fears
I run through the night
Cannot hide my tears
I run through the night - I run through the night
