

Anointed, Grace Enough

You've been sitting there
While the time flies by
In a corner of despair
With a hundred questions why
You think you've fallen too deep
For anyone to reach your soul
But at the end of your tries
There's something I think you should know
Let me tell you there's grace enough
There's faith enough for you
There's an ocean of mercy
Grace enough, there's faith enough
To pull you through
So no matter how blue your yesterdays were
There's grace enough
There's grace enough for you
You've been a prisoner of your shame
For far too long
You've been lost outside His love
Struggling on your own
But you've been wondering forever
If things will get better here
But there's hope for the asking
Just beyond your fears
Let me tell you there's grace enough
There's faith enough for you
There's an ocean of mercy
Grace enough, there's faith enough
To pull you through
So no matter how blue your yesterdays were
There's grace enough
There's grace enough for you
For you, for you, for you, for you
Grace enough for you
There's an ocean of mercy
Grace enough, there's faith enough
To pull you through
So no matter how blue your yesterdays were
There's grace enough
There's grace enough for you, for you
