

B.B. King, Walkin' In The Sun

Well, things have been goin' wrong
Long enough to know that everything is just right
I've been walkin' in the dark
Long enough to know when I've finally seen the light
I've been losin' long enough
To know when I've finally have won
And even a blind man can tell
When he's walkin' in the sun
Well, I've cried enough tears
To recognize this feeling called a smile
I've been bottom rung long enough
To know when I'm doin' it in style
I've been runnin' so long enough
To know when there's no more need to run
And even a blind man can tell
When he's walkin' in the sun

Oh, the wind is at my back
And I'm sailin' on a ship that's overdue
I've blown so many chances
That I ain't gonna blow this one with you
And I've seen enough bad times
To know when the good times have begun
And even a blind man can tell
When he's walkin' in the sun
And even a blind man can tell
When he's walkin' in the sun
And even a blind man can tell
When he's walkin' in the sun
And even a blind man can tell
When he's walkin' in the sun
