

Citizen Soldier, You Are Enough

You see that glass half empty
Each time you look in the mirror
It's like the more you're trying
Your flaws start showing up clearer

You bleed emotion so devoted to what people say
So sick of hoping so you focus on all your mistakes
Stop changing, there's nothing to fix when life's a war for you
That's when your pulse becomes the proof

When you're a little messed up
When you're a little unwell
And nobody understands
That you are going through hell
Right here like this right now
You are enough
When you've been broken and bruised
Because the past has been tough
Being human is
What makes you something worthy of love
Right here this sick right now
You are enough
So don't give up

With every passing stranger
You find something that you're missing
So kind, except to yourself
You're anything but forgiving

You bleed emotion so devoted to what people say
Give second chances left and right and only take the blame
Don't change a single thing 'cause there is nothing wrong with you
What you feel now, don't make it truth

When you're a little messed up
When you're a little unwell
And nobody understands
That you are going through hell
Right here like this right now
You are enough
When you've been broken and bruised
Because the past has been tough
Being human is
What makes you something worthy of love
Right here this sick right now
You are enough

Stop chasing something that you're never gonna find
Already perfect but your past has left you blind
So when the voices in your head ain't being kind
Here is something to remind you

When you're a little messed up
When you're a little unwell
And nobody understands
That you are going through hell
Right here like this right now
You are enough
When you've been broken and bruised
Because the past has been tough
Being human is
What makes you something worthy of love
Right here this sick right now
You are enough

So don't give up