

Enrico Garzilli, Freedom

Abelard

I fly where the winds kiss the blue sky
To find places scented and lush
I whisper my dreams to the noon thrush
And never let sweet freedom die
I've fled from my tomb of contentment
I've cut through the teeth of their chains
I've broken my bonds of resentment
Loosened the grip on their reins
Openly she teaches
Goddess of all seasons
Silently she speaks my name
Cast your cares upon her
Goddess of all reasons
And you'll never be the same
I play in her courtyard at night-fall
Worship her song without shame
Like water on fire near the sea-wall
Freedom sets my world aflame
Light up all the heavens
Soar up to the summit
And you'll never plummet down
Fantasies so wondrous
Ecstasies so luminous
Freedom's her eternal name

Choir

Fantasies so wondrous
Ecstasies so luminous
Freedom's her eternal name
Freedom
Abelard
Freedom!