Eric Carmen, I Can Remember

(eric carmen)

I can remember summer skies and your eyes And in september when I first realized That I needed you to be the other half of me And my love long locked inside itself Had finally been set free

I can remember autumn skies and goodbyes Hurting so badly that I thought I would die But the more things seem to change The more they stay the same And the lonely ones get lonelier With every passing day

From the day we met I knew that I should never let you get a hold on me 'cause now you see I can't forget you Oh i, I can remember mid summer skies Love in your eyes

In the spring the sun will shine

And make the ice surrender
But it will not warm my heart
As long as I remember
Oh i, I can remember mid summer skies
Love in your eyes

And i, I will remember the times I've cried Since you said goodbye. I nearly died when you said "i, I can't let you down any more So I guess this is goodbye" What, what did you do it for? Every time I think of you and him together I break down and cry

Oh i, I can remember the tears I've cried Since you said "goodbye" I, I can remember the tears I've cried Since you said "goodbye"

I can remember I can remember I can remember
