

Fairyland, Hubris Et Orbis

It's good to be alive
In times of joy and wonder
Looking for a shining new future

Innocent, shrouded in light
Eyes wide open, full of hunger
Wait
For the twilight to come.

And On this new wonder
Rises the Age of the Light
On Osyrhia

Now he can feel, deep inside through the bliss, a forbidden anger
Rising

He came as their guide, gave them the light delivered them from their darkest night, deserving of the glorious creations?

And On this new wonder
Rises the Age of the Light
On Osyrhia

Everywhere thy kingdom comes
From the mountains to the seas thy will be done
And the children of light
Have forsaken the night
For a thousand years thy kingdom comes

The fire of his will
The flames that give him power
Tears him down in pain and confusion

His vision of mankind
The rage the grief the pride
Will bring an age of chaos, destruction

And On this new wonder
Rises the Age of the Light
On Osyrhia

Everywhere thy kingdom comes
From the mountains to the seas thy will be done
And the children of light
Have forsaken the night
For a thousand years thy kingdom comes

And On this new wonder
Rises the Age of the Light
On Osyrhia

Everywhere thy kingdom comes
And the children of light
Have forsaken the night

"Everywhere thy kingdom comes"
"thy will be done"

And the children of light
Have forsaken the night

Thy kingdom comes
