

For Felix, Leaning Towards Forever

600 days ago was a good day to be me
Fast times had settled down when I realized I could be Here falling for you
Long drives to nowhere consumed nights that I will always hold so close to me
The stars would always seem to shine much brighter a song that summons burning lighters
To sway above the crowd I've never been so proud
But now that you're gone I look back on those days and wonder why I could have ever let you down
With this one last try I look back wondering how long we'd last
This time I'm leaning towards forever
Phone calls at awkward timings
I prayed that if you felt the same you'd talk to me and then you'd see
I've grown a lifetime since we were together thinking how I'd be a better man for you
I'll see this through
Cause now that you're gone
I look back on those days and wonder why I could have ever let you down
With this one last try I look back wondering how long we'd last
This time I'm leaning towards forever
Now that your gone
I look back on our times together it seemed so right and I know that If you came back we'd be better
