

Gene Clark, Back In My Life Again

Sweetheart I've gotta question to ask you but I don't know if you can ever answer it
I only want to know where do I stand in my life
You know that's up to me
I'm the one who decided to see
But would you believe it's just now that you are wanting to be

For I had just gotten over the pain
Finally gotten you out of my brain
I just can't believe you decide to walk back into my world again
Now you're not thinking you were so smart
You regret ever breaking my heart
And you want to come back and take up your old part of my world again

Don't you think we could find some resolution to Just make it simple and make not a constitution
Out of every little thing that you do on I
What is it that we own
And what just makes us feel that we're all alone
Even though we're together here for life

Cause you had just gotten over the pain
Finally gotten me out of your brain
Then would you believe you decide to walk back into my life again
Now you say that you weren't so smart
You regret ever breaking my heart
And you want to come back and take up your old part of my world again

This time, Kathleen, it's me that has changed
