Holly McNarland, The Box

I had a box
A box that could talk
We looked inside and found
A yellow ribbon
So i took that box
For a long, long walk
And we had a talk
And went to look for a friend

And i had to eat you

We went shopping
The whole while talking
We fell upon a little egg
And the egg started talking

Could this be true Have i really found you To stop this box from talking Well i must eat you

And i had to eat you Have i really found you

The egg is terrified But not to my surprise But i had to stop him This box from talking

So i said goodbye And i see you both next time And i'll be along my way But the ribbons will always stay

And i had to eat you Have i really found you