James Morrison, Letter

It's got my name on it And it's just waiting there for me I feel the cold run through my veins And it's got her shame on it She couldn't say it to my face But I won't waste time placing blame I know that I'll move on, I tell myself I'll find me something better I'll let go and just forget her She was no good for me Deep down I know that's the way it has to be so How come I still can't open this letter I can't forget her... There must be a name for it Whatever this is you've done to me I'm all twisted up inside Well who's gonna pay for it? If it's not you I guess it's me You left with your life And took mine Oh I really wish I could Really wish I could Oh yeah It's got my name on it And it's just waiting there for me...
