

Jan Howard, Any Old Way You Do

Sometimes you're mean sometimes you ain't
Sometimes you're a devil sometimes you're a saint
Sometimes I wish that I could leave and say we're through
But I love you any old way you do honey I love you any old way you do
Sometimes you drink sometimes you don't Sometimes you cheat when you swear you won't
You're no good man you prove it through and through
But I love you any old way you do honey I love you any old way you do
You keep up be a devil in my heart and on my mind
But I put up with all this hurt for the moments when you're kind
You're ninety nine but send no good and I walk out if I thought I could
But before I reach that darned heart could break in two
For I love you any old way you do honey I love you any old way you do
That's all right that's all right that's all right that's all right
Honey I love you any old way you do
