

Jerry Cantrell, Siren Song

Cold night adrift in snow
No matter where I go
Seems I can only see green eyes
Calling a siren song out of time
Out here the lights hum low
And your return unknown
Still I can feel your lips on mine
Falling, indecision's hold on my mind
She don't lie she walks on
A passerby in a dream
You feel as though it'll never die
In my dark you are the light
Funny how the feeling never goes
When I'm wrong you are the right
Carry the memory in my soul
And when the day is done
Think on the things I've done
Holding a piece you left inside
Oh yeah, gonna have to last me til the end of line
She don't lie she walks on
A passerby in a dream
You feel as though it'll never die
In my dark you are the light
Funny how the feeling never goes
When I'm wrong you are what's right
Carry the memory in my soul
In my dark you are the light
Carry you with me in my soul
