

Joe Cocker, Midnight Without You

(P. Buchanan/J.Moore/C.Botl)

Look at the cars Going nowhere fast
They disappear like you
Stars are falling The time is changing
To midnight without you
So I walk out
The streets and alleys round here
The taxi's heading on Uptown again
Right to the station Where people stand waiting
And every night I know
The cost of letting go
Is midnight without you Yeah
It's midnight without you yeah
And though I might want to
I just can't stand the cold in you
I'd do anything but go through, yeah
This midnight without you
No, no
Midnight without you
This midnight without you
Midnight without you
I walk out
Clock on the wall Steps in the hall
