

Kirin J Callinan, Big Enough (ft. Alex Cameron, M

I've lived in lonely cities I've crossed deserts on camel back and I've filled the halls of folklore with things I'd rather we forget

I could sweep you off the streets so saying this goddamn tough but this town might be big enough... see, I reckon what you're saying but this dog's run every course I've roamed without my boots on I've raced without my horse and then I ate my horse's meat straight from my horse's bones cause this dog must roam alone

you could shoot me in the mountains in the cold flat rain we could do it in the countryside as we walk the plain it wouldn't give us any closure all cowboys need to trust that this town might be big enough for both of us
