

Lapis Lazuli, Nature's Call

Look to the sky, see the moon glowing bright, hear the voices, the treespirits calling Lost in the wilds, feeling watched, consealed eyes, they dwell in the stars, which are falling Nowhere to run, I've got nowhere to hide,
And theres nothing I can do to stop it
I need to heed it, the summoning call, that takes me to places unknown

"The flower that grows in the heart of a mountain is truly the strongest off all";

Hear Nature Call
Allmighty nations rise and fall
By Natures Call
Beggars praise and kings will crawl
To Natures Call

The sound of the wind, feel it touching my skin so gentle, now, how can that be?
Who can control such mysterious things?
The stars, Mother Gaia or we?
Ages ago, bringing water and stone to the planet, and gave it a life of its own Some praise religion, and some praise mankind
But nature stands above them all

"The flower that grows in the heart of a mountain
is truly the strongest off all";

Hear Nature Call
Allmighty nations rise and fall
By Natures Call
Beggars praise and kings will crawl
To Natures Call

And from the shadow, the growl of a wolf freeze my mind
He makes a leap, hit me, I fall to the ground

Hear Nature Call
Allmighty nations rise and fall
By Natures Call
Beggars praise and kings will crawl
To Natures Call
