

Linkin Park, Looking For An Answer

There's an emptiness tonight
A hole that wasn't there before
And I keep reaching for the light
And I can't find it anymore

There's an emptiness tonight
A heavy hand that pulls me down
They say it's gonna be alright
They can't begin to tell me how

And I ask myself out loud

Have I been lost all along
Was there something I could say or something I should not have done
Was I lost all along
Was I looking for an answer
When there never really was one
Was I looking for an answer
When there never really was one

Is there sunshine where you are
The way that was when you were here
Cause I'm just sitting in the dark
In disbelief that this is real
In disbelief that this is real

Have I been lost all along
Was there something i could say or something I should not have done
Was I lost all along
Was I looking for an answer
When there never really was one
Was I looking for an answer
When there never really was one

And I ask myself out loud

Have I been lost all along
Was there something i could say or something I should not have done
Was I lost all along
Was I looking for an answer
When there never really was one
Was I looking for an answer
When there never really was one
