Lizzy McAlpine, hate to be lame (feat. FINNEAS) it's always on the tip on my tongue i read an article on the internet told me that that's how you know you're falling in love don't really trust what's on the internet but maybe just this once hate to admit but it might be true hate to admit but i think you knew hate to be lame but i might love you

it's always on the tip of my tongue but i stop myself from saying it tell myself it's not the right time or something dumb but then you kiss me like you do and we're right back where we started from

hate to admit but it might be true hate to admit but i think you knew hate to be lame but i might love you do i love him do i need him

do i want him
do i care enough to say that i love him
that i need him cause i don't but i want to feel okay if i love him
if i need him
maybe that will make him stay if i lie will i still feel this way?

it's always in the back of my mind maybe my mistakes are the reason that i made it back to you in time if i could rewind would there be some butterfly effect what if we never met what if the stars never aligned

hate to admit but it might be true hate to admit but i think you knew hate to be lame but i might love you