

Marta Ławska, Loneliness

Loneliness, I call you now,
Would you like to speak with me for a little while?
I feel so empty inside,
When he's not by my side,
So what should I do,
To get away from you?

I am who I am,
But I'll tell you one thing, tell you one thing
I can love like nobody,
To make it worth something.

I am who I am,
But I'll tell you one thing, tell you one thing
I can love like nobody,
To make it worth something.

Isn't he beautiful?
With this smile on his face.
Isn't he perfect?
He walks with such grace.
But he's not for you, dear,
He has stolen your tears,
And he will do it again,
Will you endure this pain?

I am who I am,
But I'll tell you one thing, tell you one thing
I can love like nobody,
To make it worth something

I am who I am,
But I'll tell you one thing, tell you one thing
I can love like nobody,
To make it worth something.

Loneliness, may I sit by your side?
Can we talk, cause I'm not doing fine?
I honestly think that you should be gone
From my life, for longer than before,
'Coz you are not the part of me,
So let me go and set me free,
But in fact, you're my closest friend,
And our friendship will never, ever end.

I am who I am,
But I'll tell you one thing, tell you one thing
I can love like nobody,
To make it worth something.

I am who I am,
But I'll tell you one thing, tell you one thing
I can love like nobody,
To make it worth something.

I am who I am,
But I'll tell you one thing, tell you one thing
I can love like nobody,
To make it worth something.

I am who I am,
But I'll tell you one thing, tell you one thing
I can love like nobody,
To make it worth something.
