

Nick Carter, Light In Your Eyes

Nick Carter
Light In Your Eyes

I can't remember the last time that we kissed goodbye
All our I love yous were just not enough to survive
Something your eyes never told me, but it's only now to plain to see
Brilliant disguise when you hold me and I'm free

I've been thinking and heres what I've come to conclude
Sometimes the distance is more than two people can use
But how could I have known girl
It was time and that space that you would need
Darling tonight I could hold you and you would know
But would you believe

There's a light in your eyes I used to see
There's a place in your heart where I used to be
Was I wrong to assume that you were waiting for me
There's a light in your eyes did you leave that light burning for me

Cards and phone calls and photographs pictures of you,
Constant reminder of all the things you get used to
Is there a chance in hell or heaven that theres still something to build on
Or do you just pick up the peices after they fall but after all

There's a light in your eyes I used to see
And a song in the words you spoke to me
Was I wrong to believe in your meoldy
There's a light in your eyes did you leave that light burning for me
Should I keep on waiting or does love keep on fadeing away, fading away

Its been a while since I've seen you so how have you been Did you get my letter that I wrote you that I did not send
I tried to call your old number but the voice that I heard on the phone
I reconized but you told me that the number was wrong

There's a light in my eyes it's too bright to see
And a pain in my heart where you used to be
Guess I was wrong to assumn you were waiting for me
There's a light in your eyes did you leave that light burning for me
