

Noel Gallagher's High Flying Birds, Riverman

There's something in the way she moves me, to distraction;
I travelled all this way to try and make amends

'Cause heavy in the air are the words that she left hanging I tried to walk away, but I only stand and stare.

The rain that comes
All of the love that was left behind is gone
When the riverman runs
Find me the girl who electrifies the storm

'cause in a little while, she'll be gone...

I waited in the rain My feet too wet to stand in I shouted out your name behind the rainbow's end

But somewhere in the crowd, she heard me jingle jangling Like a memory that fades, she slipped away again...

The rain that comes
All of the love that was left behind is gone
When the riverman runs
Find me the girl who electrifies the storm

'cause in a little while, she'll be gone.