Over It, Whitney

the world can't understand me broken hearted no one left for me to care for as these tears stream from my eyes along i scream aloud i wish i had the answers, i wish i could tell you one last thing before you go across this distance whitney this world just wasn't meant for you these times are cold and lonely fortunes found a new home in the hands of misery if only you were with me cause im all alone here i hope i make it through the harest time i've yet to know for the first time yesterday im on my own