

Pietasters, Bitter

Well I know you said, I never helped you anyway
And I guess I know, I never should have trusted you Sorry to remind you of the promises you've broken
Wouldn't want to dwell upon the lies

So many times I heard about, what I should do
So many times I've read about what you want me to do
So many times I wonder if you realize I don't care about you

Well I heard you said, you never liked me anyway
I'm sure that you knew, I never really trusted you
Even if you come to with promises of roses
It won't be enough to free all the friendships that you broke

So many times I thought about what I could do
So many times I heard about all the stupid fking things that you want
me to do
So many times I wonder if you realize I don't care about you

So many times I thought about what I could do
So many times I heard about all the stupid fking things that you want
me to do
So many times I wonder if you realize I don't care about you