Reba McEntire, He Broke Your Memory Last Nigl

(Dickey Lee/Bucky Jones)

Like a rare piece of crystal Like a fine china cup I kept your memory all safely locked up Afraid I could never love somebody new I was trying to save what I had left of you

Then he broke your memory last night I felt it shatter inside I guess he held me a little too right He broke your memory last night

The moment he touched me with his gentle hands Your memory crumbled like a house built on sand He swept all the pieces of your love away And then gave me his love to put in it's place

Cause he broke your memory last night I felt it shatter inside I guess he held me a little too right He broke your memory last night He broke your memory last night