

Ren & Stimpy, Ren's Pecs

Stimpy: It's sure lonely around here ever since Ren got his Pectoral implants & went to Hollywood.

(Singing)

I've never asked for anything just your happiness.

And now that you have found it I should be glad, I guess.

But I've played in my litter box as long as I can.

And I would give most anything just to hear "What is it man?"

I know you've got your pecs now and gone on to bigger things

But before you go and flex now there's a cat at home who sings

That each and every day and night he misses his best friend.

And I only need to see you once to make this feelings end.

No matter where you go,
no matter what you do

Remember there's little bit of Stimpy's butt in you.

And just once when you strike a pose could you think of me?

'Cause when I scratch my rear
I think of how it use to be.

The house is much too quite now that I don't hear your voice

And you know that I'd be with you if i only had my choice.

But I know I will smile again when I see your name in lights

And when they talk about you I'll tell them

That I knew you when you were just Ren.