

Sarah Brightman, Finale

I've done it again!
Trust me. If you want something ruined give it to me.
Show me a dream and I'll show you a nightmare.
I'm not a little girl anymore I keep forgetting that.
Whatever I do now is bound to be a mistake.
Maybe I expect too much.

Just what time of night do you call this?
No I'm not alright, maybe she's alright, maybe you're alright
Let me finish I said let me finish
What kind of a person am I turning into?
Must be mad to have gone this far
Must be mad to share a married man
All you leave everytime you leave me
Is a pillow that smells of Paperavan
No I don't want a drink, sit down
Might as well not pull any punches
I've been wrong before
Maybe I'm wrong now, but I feel I'm right
Let me finish, I said let me finish
This isn't a joke for God's sake stop smiling
Come back
Can't we sit and talk this thing over?
The world hasn't stopped has it
Think I'll get my hair cut, I'm due for a change
This time I'm right
This time I've done the right thing!
There's so much going on in this town
I don't know where to start
Don't think it will rain today
Sunday, you can't beat New York on a Sunday
Yes I was mistaken
I must have been blind
It's easy to find that kind of man
Who makes you feel you're a name on a list
I'll never do that again.
Take that look off your face!
I can see through your smile.
You would love to be right.
I bet you do not sleep good tonight,
You may think I never learn
But wait and see
Take that look off your face
You don't know me!
Take that look off your face!
I can see through your smile.
You would love to be right.
I bet you do not sleep good tonight,
You may think I never learn
But wait and see
Take that look off your face
You don't know me!
You won't know me
