

The Pogues, Where That Love's Been Gone

Sometimes I wonder who's making love to you now
Now that it's been so long
Yes sometimes I wonder who's making love to you now
Now that it's been so long
Well I don't know where or when you found out
Where that love's been gone

Remember that winter we went walking in the snow
Now it's been and gone
Yes, I remember the winter we went walking in the snow
Snow that's been and gone
And right across the country still I've got to go
Wherever that love's been gone

But any old way there's a smile on my face
There's a smile that I just can't hide
Though I'm missing you now like I never knew how
I couldn't forget you if I tried

Don't it make you wonder, but I wouldn't worry no more
Standing by the side of the road
Oh don't it make you wonder, but I wouldn't worry no more
Just standing by the side of the road
Into the night you just pick up and go
You'll see where the love's been gone

But any old way there's a smile on my face
There's a smile that I just couldn't hide
Though I'm missing you now like I never knew how
I couldn't forget you if I tried
I couldn't forget you
I couldn't forget you
I couldn't forget you if I tried

I couldn't forget you
I couldn't forget you
I couldn't forget you if I tried
