

The Wedding Present, Ringway To Seatac

You ask me how I feel, well suddenly this is all for real It hasn't seemed like that till now, it's as if you almost were still mine somehow I hope you've realised just how I'm being so civilised
But it's nearly time I went, we've got one last chance to have an argument

Watching you walk back to your car
Was the lowest point of my life so far

Don't stare into my eyes, I couldn't bear for you to realise That I'm still desperately in love with you and darling that's all I can think of It'll get easier every day, well I'll be five thousand miles away
And I'm good at hiding pain but now I really should get on that plane

And watching you walk back to your car
Was the lowest point of my life so far
As if you still could ever do a single thing That'd make me hate you