

Todd Agnew, You Are

I need some substance in this relativistic world
I need some truth in the middle of all these lies
I need some comfort to wipe away these tears
I need someone to tell me there's more to this life.

You are the truth, You are the life
You are more than I ever dreamed, and
You are the door through which I find
You are all that I'll ever need

I need some wisdom to choose which way to walk
I need some strength to take this very step
I need some faith to help these blinded eyes to see
I need something more than everything inside of me

You are the truth, You are the life, You are the way
You are more than I ever dreamed, and
You are the door through which I find
You are all that I'll ever need and You are God