

Tommy James, Light Of Day

I have noticed the delegation has not yet become
So far away to be touched by the light of the Spirit,
The truth, and the way, and the light of day.
I have noticed when fools take off their mask,
The masquerade is over. But when they look at each other,
You can hear them sayin', "I thought I was the only one."
I'll believe what you believe in.
I will fill your head with sorrow.
I will count every day we're livin',
Every day that we borrow.
I have wandered beyond my limitations and I have seen
The bed of wisdom. But the soul cannot survive
If it is occupied by the games of good and evil.
I'll believe in what you believe in.
I will fill your head with sorrow.
I will count every day we are livin',
Every day we have borrowed.
