

Tripod, Fly So High

I never thought I could fly so high.
When I met you, I touched the sky.
You sent me flying higher than I've ever been.
Who would've thought you'd be such a crack shot,
with a rocket launcher.

When I first saw you, I went to pieces.
My heart exploded, and the rest of my body did too.
Where have you been all my life?
Apparently just behind that bush.
Lying in wait, stocked up and ready to fire.

Suddenly you just appeared in my life,
and now I'm in heaven.
