

Van Canto, Quest For Roar

This is the quest for roar
The quest for roar

At the end of this day we are what we are Still carrying the name they gave to us
But nevertheless we're feeling a change
A thousand voices inside are screaming out loud
We beg for everyone to return a shout
The course of time, now rearranged

We are all but lost forever
Our short time here will never ever last
At least we know what we are living for

This is the quest for roar
The quest for more
It is the quest for metal we're fighting for
From deep within
With all our hearts
We're fighting for the quest for roar

From this very day on we will return
And we will refuse to disappear again
In every blast of the storm
We're spelling our name

We are all but lost forever
Our short time here will never ever last
At least we know what we are living for

This is the quest for roar
The quest for more
It is the quest for metal we're fighting for
From deep within
With all our hearts
We're fighting for the quest for roar

It's not our aim to hum, to aspirate
To perish tardily
It's our goal to be, and to become
And to rise constantly

This is the quest for roar
The quest for more
It is the quest for metal we're fighting for
From deep within
With all our hearts
We're fighting for the quest for roar

This is the quest for roar
The quest for more
It is the quest for metal we're fighting for
From deep within
With all our hearts
We're fighting for the quest for roar