

Virginia Ernst, Rockin'

I saw you there
across the street
your pretty smile
was catching me

now every morning
at the railway station
it's 7:30
And you are catching your train and whenever i see that you're looking at me then my heart skips a beat or two

and i keep wondering why i'm too scared to say hi or at least wave good-bye to you

you got me rockin
still we're not talking
it only goes bap
bababap but inside my head badapbadap
badapap 'cause you got me rockin that's what you do

i picked a flower
wrote you a letter
but then i kept them
so what does it matter?

if words were like teardrops that you hide inside
i'd cry you a river
once they're untied

it only goes bap
bap but inside my head
bap
bap is driving me mad
bap
bap that's so lame
i haven't even asked for your name for your name
but i keep on telling myself that today is the day but today is the day

I wont falter again
i just got on your train and now, right after we go

you pick your seat
and then our eyes meet
you smile and i say hello
