

Warren Brothers, Strange

(Brett James/Troy Verges)

Yeah, yeah, yeah

Well I headed to Atlanta for the weekend
Just to step out of my boring little life
I was going to my best friend's brothers' wedding
Thought I'd eat and drink for free for just one night

I was sittin' in the pew behind the Grandmas
When the bridesmaids all came walkin' down the aisle
She was the second from the last I still remember
Because I knew I'd seen forever in her smile

Oh, life all comes down to a couple of moments
When just like that everything can change
You open up your eyes and in an instant
Nothing will ever be the same
Ain't life strange
Ain't it strange

We had a wedding of our own that next December
Somehow I made that little bridesmaid my bride
I guess no one really ever sees the future
Oh but you can just imagine my surprise
When nine months later we were down at the County General
We were watching little Liza join the world
Well I'm not sure but I think I might have kissed the doctor
When he said congratulations Daddy it's a girl

Oh, life all comes down to a couple of moments
When just like that everything can change
You open up your eyes and in an instant
Nothing will ever be the same
Ain't life strange
Ain't it strange

I said life all comes down to a couple of moments
When just like that everything can change
You open up your eyes and in an instant
Nothing will ever be the same
Ain't life strange
Ain't it strange

Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah
Ain't life strange, baby
