

Wedding Present, A Million Miles

I must have walked past this doorway thirty times
Just trying to catch your eye
You made it all worthwhile when you returned my smile
It all became worthwhile
Don't you feel a little cold stood by the door?
You know I'd really like to talk some more
Oh don't be worried about your friend--
I think she left some time around ten
What was her name, again?

You're not like anyone I've ever met

Do you see much of Charlie over here?
Oh I've known him off and on, for years
He's never mentioned you before
Oh that didn't come out right at all
And now I feel this small
That seems to be it
Don't get me wrong, but how are you going to get back home?
I'd be willing to walk that way
There's something I've just got to say
I'd walk a million miles today

You're not like anyone I've ever met

I kept bursting out with laughter all the way home
I had to tell somebody, and you just happened to phone
I can't think of anything else, no matter how I try
But, you know, I can't even remember the color of her eyes

You're not like anyone I've ever met
Well, at least not yet
