

Wilburn Brothers, You're Standing In The Way

The tie that binds me to you time never can erase
I don't know how it happened or when she took your place
The difference shows between you two it's just like night and day
So won't you please move over you're standing in the way
You always tried to rule me she treats me like a man
And where you want to change me she wants me like I am
You twist each word I say to you she believes the things I say
So won't you please move over you're standing in the way
(steel)
All it takes to make her happy is to know that I'm all right
But to you it wouldn't matter if I should die tonight
I'm falling more in love with her and need you less each day
So won't you please move over you're standing in the way
