

Witherfall, Where Do I Begin?

Where Do I Begin?

Once upon a time, before all of our ties were broken
We used to try to hide our prejudice and lies unspoken
Now we long for days and revisit our pasts abandoned
They're falling away, left to tell the story of our lives...

If our dream dies, will I be awake enough to save it?
If I have a choice, tell me Where do I begin?
Time after time, given everything I had for nothing
To find an answer, deny the sin. Tell me, Where do I Begin?

Our reality unwinds, bring in all the wasted years in focus
Though we try to justify, those memories will not console us
Here we stand today, as witness to our fading seasons
The years drift away, to sail across the river lost in time

If our dream dies, will I be awake enough to save it?
If I have a choice, tell me Where do I begin?
Time after time, given everything I had for nothing
To find an answer, deny the sin. Tell me, Where do I Begin?

Will no one here, pose the question? We all want answers.
Time is not our friend, though we will surely meet tonight.
Waiting in a small room, locked beyond the door as it closes forever.
Forever...

If our dream dies, will I be awake enough to save it?
If I have a choice, tell me Where do I begin?
Time after time, given everything I had for nothing
To find an answer, deny the sin. Tell me, Where do I Begin?
